

Summer Series Race #6 July 14, 2020

Hello runners,

Another different kind of day in a different kind of year. Our second actual run, of six in the series, on a new course. We had runners do virtual as well as show up for the actual run. All who showed up started on their own at random times.

Distancing, which I seem to remember as a bad thing for running, was not a problem. Results are below.

This was a 3 person team run with teams determined by random number. Runners actual times were combined to determine team time.

The new course received fair reviews. Seems everyone really liked mile 2 (down hill). Mile 3 (what goes down must go up) was not a favorite. The race director, with good knowledge of the area, escaped by way of corn fields and woods before the small socially distanced mob got too nasty.

Next run will be in two weeks with the start moved to Roller Printing at 2 Industrial Drive.

Run safe.

Kev
